

'I'D BURN ISRAELI BOOKS MYSELF IF I FOUND ANY IN LIBRARIES IN EGYPT.'

— FAROUK HOSNI, CANDIDATE FOR UNESCO
DIRECTOR-GENERAL, MAY 2008

Can you imagine a man who advocates book burning heading the international organization that exists to protect the heritage of global civilization?

Yet those are the shameful views of Farouk Hosni, the man Egypt wants to head UNESCO.

His selection would be an outrage.

The Nazis instigated their terror by setting ablaze sacred texts, holy books and volumes of science, medicine, art and philosophy. They knew if they destroyed culture, then they could dehumanize and destroy entire peoples.

Out of the ashes of World War II, UNESCO was created to uplift, ennoble and unite humanity. A man who advocates one of the most shocking crimes against culture and civilization should never be its leader.

PRESIDENT MUBARAK, WITHDRAW FAROUK HOSNI FOR UNESCO'S DIRECTOR-GENERAL NOW!

'WHERE THEY HAVE BURNED BOOKS, THEY WILL END IN BURNING HUMAN BEINGS.'
